It Doesn't Get More Charming Than This New Hotel

By Christie Grimm

Following a four-year restoration process, Hotel Peter and Paul is finally open, and oh was it well worth the wait.

Located in the Faubourg Marigny neighborhood of New Orleans, the impressive property spans four uniquely designed landmark buildings: a former school house, rectory, church and convent.

The Rectory features a restaurant and bar, the church serves as an elegant event space, and lodging options are sprinkled about throughout, with no two guest rooms looking exactly alike. Decorated with an antiques, old world charm, and a generous palette of gingham, the hotel alone is worthy of a trip to New Orleans.
